When we first began assembling this guide to contemporary American architecture, we were faced with two enormous questions: why produce such a document in the first place and how to go about doing it?

The first question was easy to answer: no such guidebook currently exists. Although there are travel guides, regional guides, congratulatory guides produced by local architectural societies, guides to historical architecture, at this writing there is no guidebook intended for use in the field by the traveler with a particular interest in contemporary architecture.

This guide does not pretend to be encyclopedic. It is selective, portable and is perhaps most useful because it gives the exact address of listed buildings and shows a picture of almost every one. The reader can judge in advance whether the building is of interest. In the case of major cities, locations are shown on street maps, allowing the traveler to group his site visits efficiently.

The book gives an overview, representing important contemporary buildings throughout the country and provides a bibliography of local guidebooks in the event the traveler wishes to examine the architecture of a city or region in greater depth.

This is a pocket book—a field manual for people in search of those architectural trends which have found realization during the last forty years. Convenient to use and simple to read, it provides the first clues to a more detailed quest.

Deciding which buildings to include in the guide was a very difficult problem. While some cities are virtual museums of contemporary architecture, others have fewer examples of remarkable new buildings. While in the former case we felt obliged to be critically selective, in the latter we had to make subjective decisions about our choices. This led to debates and compromises. A building which was highly acclaimed in 1966 might seem ordinary in 1981, but it may have been seminal—the first to use a particular structural system or to adopt a certain attitude toward its site. The Seagram Building, for example, which spawned many imitations, set a precedent for new forms of urban setbacks. Other buildings have been cannibalized and copied so frequently that the original idea is sullied.

A few other buildings demonstrating new land uses were Roche and Dinkeloo's Ford Foundation Building in New York, which introduced the large, glass-roofed entrance court to a tight urban setting; and Smith, Jones and Contini's Mutual Housing, Los Angeles, the first large scale suburban housing development which fitted the houses to the hillside sites, leaving the valleys as a wild park; and John Lautner's Chemosphere houses in the Hollywood Hills which are supported on a single concrete mast.

Some buildings are included because they signified the turning point in an architect's career: Louis I. Kahn's 1959 Jewish Community Center Bath House, Trenton, NJ; Robert Venturi's 1964 house for his mother (Venturi & Rauch), Philadelphia; and Cesar Pelli's 1976 Pacific Design Center, Los Angeles (Gruen Associates).

Others are here because they marked a change in direction that was important in architectural or planning history: Victor Gruen's 1954 Northland Shopping Center, Detroit; Eero Saarinen's 1962 TWA Terminal at Kennedy Airport; John Portman's 1967 Peachtree Center, Atlanta; Roche and Dinkeloo's 1968 Oakland Museum; and Moore, Lyndon, Turnbull and Whitaker's 1965 Sea Ranch, Gualala, California.

Still others are here because they used old forms in new ways, new places, as Frank Lloyd Wright's anti-urban spiral for Fifth Avenue, New York, in the Guggenheim Museum. Or Bertrand Goldberg's cylindrical apartment towers in Marina City, Chicago. Or the Lakepoint Tower in Chicago (John Heinrich and George Schipporeit) based on Mies's famous free form glass tower projects of the 1920s that were never built.

Others, like Buckminster Fuller, are here because the examples cited are a further refinement and exploration of an idea which carried them through their entire careers.

We have included a type missing from most guides during the heroic period of modern architecture—the regional building. Some areas, particularly California and the South, were always receptive to regional styles, giving them a place with “official” architecture. To the purist of the 1930s wood was synonymous with regional, which automatically excluded architects working in the Bay Area style in northern California until William Wilson Wurster broke the barrier; and in southern California the followers of Greene and Greene had short shrift until Harwell Harris and a few others working in wood were admitted.

But we passed over much of Pop architecture. This, along with craftsmen's houses, has been lovingly observed by David Gebhard and Robert Winter in their guide "Architecture in Los Angeles and Southern California," and Winter's "The California Bungalow." John Margolies continues to collect Pop in all forms throughout the United States; and Charles Jencks brings a reluctant scholarship to the Pop of postmodern. John Pastier's collection of 20,000 old and new postcards from city, town and hamlet across the country is the backbone of a popular history of American urban development. John Chase and John Beach have explored such architectural byways as decorator's houses and set design architecture. We leave all these fields to them.

We have eliminated from the guide a number of important buildings which are difficult to reach and may not be entered if you do. Many good houses have been excluded because they are screened from view by planting or fences, and visitors are not welcome. As guides multiply themselves throughout the country the patience of many owners of famous houses has run out. But often a study of the exterior is reward enough for the visit.

In looking for buildings to include in the guide, we drew on many sources: our own travels, the experience of many advisors, and on publications. Some architects who have reached international stature are represented by a large number of buildings across the country. We felt that if an architect was celebrated enough for his work to extend from Maine to Oregon, it would probably be worth a look.

Architecture is not distributed democratically, the best being heavily weighted to the major cities and to the east and west coasts. But the democratic principle dies hard. Therefore it was with some distress that we noted some of the fifty states were under-represented in our first draft, or had no entries at all. To some extent we have corrected this, and hope for outraged notices of omissions before the second edition.

It was not only a geographic distribution that we looked for but a balanced age distribution as well. Controversy ensued among the editors and their friends as to what was a flash in the pan or a serious first step. (Lou Kahn once said that if an architect's first building was good it was pretty sure to have been borrowed, for as architects are finding their way in their first building it rarely comes off.) Much of the work of the young architects tends to be witty, but nothing falls flatter than the wit of a previous decade. Taken out of context, the bon mot building often has to be explained to the next generation. (Some buildings become unintentionally funny with age.) Thus the buildings for Best Company may fall flat in 1995 if the jokes have to be explained. The situation is somewhat different with the Frank Gehry houses with their exposed lath and chain link fencing: the practice and the materials are comments on the inflation of the economy and the decline of craftsmanship, which may lead the way to other solutions to the same universal problem.

Another consideration was a democratic approach to building types. There were enough friendly advisors around to deplore each type, from brutalist concrete to tight glass skin to exposed steel framing and mechanical systems.

So the principles at work in the selection of buildings for this guide were geographic distribution, inclusion of the work of the young, and no weighting of the guide to a few structural types. This last criterion can be stated negatively: you'll pass it on the way to something else. Or it's in the guide because it's big and it's up.

If we are fortunate, the guide will be what John Ashbery called "a bag into which anything is dumped and ends up belonging there." If our sensibilities have been too hospitable or restrictive the users of the guide will be quick to fault us.

Lorsque nous avons commencé à monter ce guide d'architecture américaine, nous nous sommes trouvés devant deux questions énormes: tout d'abord, pourquoi sortir un tel document et comment s'y prendre pour le faire?

Ce fut facile de répondre à la première question: Un tel guide n'a pas existé actuellement. Quoiqu'il y aient des guides de voyage, des guides régionaux, des guides congratatoires fournis par des sociétés d'architecture locale, et des guides d'architecture historique, il n'existe pas de guide à l'intention du touriste particulièrement intéressé dans l'architecture contemporaine.

Ce guide n'a pas l'intention d'être encyclopédique. Il est sélectif, portable et est, peut-être, le plus utile, puisqu'il donne l'adresse exacte des édifices enregistrés et montre une photographie de chacun d'eux. Le lecteur peut juger à l'avance si l'édifice est intéressant. Dans le cas de villes les plus grandes, les locations sont indiquées sur des plans, ce qui permet au touriste de grouper efficacement ses visites de site.

Ce livre présente une vue d'ensemble des édifices contemporains importants à travers le pays, et fournit une bibliographie des guides locaux dans le cas où le voyageur veut examiner plus en détail l'architecture d'une ville ou d'une région.

C'est un livre de poche, un manuel pour les personnes en quête de ces tendances architecturales qui ont fait jour durant les quarante dernières années. Pratique à l'emploi et simple à lire, il fournit les premiers indices en vue d'une recherche plus complète.

Décider quels édifices faire figurer dans le guide fut un problème difficile! Tandis que certaines villes sont de virtuels musées d'architecture contemporaine, d'autres possèdent peu d'exemples d'édifices nouveaux remarquables. Alors que dans le premier cas, nous nous sommes sentis obligés d'être sévèrement sélectifs, dans le dernier cas, nous avons dû prendre des décisions subjectives quant à notre choix. Ceci entraîna débats et compromis. Un édifice hautement apprécié en 1966 pourrait paraître quelconque en 1981, mais il peut avoir été séminal, en premier lieu d'utiliser un système structural particulier ou bien d'adopter une certaine attitude en raison de son site. Le Seagram Building, par exemple, qui engendra beaucoup d'imitations a établi un précédent pour de nouvelles formes de retours urbains. On a si souvent usurpé et copié les éléments singuliers de certains autres édifices qu'on en a souillé l'idée originale.

Quelques autres édifices illustrant l'utilisation de terrains nouveaux furent: le Ford Foundation Building à New York de Roche et Dinkeloo introduisant au strict cadre urbain les hall d'entrée à grande verrière, et Mutual Housing de Smith, Jones et Contini à Los Angeles, premier développement à grande échelle de résidences suburbaines qui nicha les maisons aux flancs de côteaux, laissant les vallées à l'état de parcs sauvages, ou bien les maisons "Chemosphere" de John Lautner, dans les collines de Hollywood qui ne sont soutenues que par un pilier de béton.

Quelques édifices figurent dans le guide parce qu'ils indiquent un nouveau tournant dans la carrière d'un architecte: les thermes de Jewish Community Center de Louis I. Kahn 1959 à Trenton, New Jersey, la maison de Robert Venturi, 1964 (pour sa mère) Venturi-Rauch, à Philadelphie, le Pacific Design Center de Cèsar Pelli, 1976, à Los Angeles (Gruen Associates).

D'autres y sont indiqués parce qu'ils ont marqué un changement d'orientation important dans l'histoire de l'architecture ou dans l'histoire de l'urbanisme:

Northland Centre Commercial, 1954 de Victor Gruen à Detroit, TWA terminal, 1962, à l'aéroport Kennedy de Eero Saarinen, le Peachtree Center de John Portman, 1967 à Atlanta, le musée de Roche et Dinkeloo, 1968 à Oakland, Sea Ranch à Gualala en Californie de Moore, Lyndon, Turnbull et Whitaker, 1965.

D'autres encore y figurent parce qu'ils ont employé des formes anciennes avec des méthodes nouvelles, de nouveaux endroits, telle la spirale anti-urbaine pour Fifth Avenue de Frank Lloyd Wright à New York au musée Guggenheim, ou les tours d'appartement cylindriques de Bertrand Goldberg à Marina City à Chicago, ou bien la tour Lakepoint de John Heinrich et George Schipporeit à Chicago, basée sur les fameux plans de tour de verre sans armature des années 1920, de Mies Van der Rohe qui ne furent jamais exécutés.

D'autres, tel Buckminster Fuller, y sont indiqués parce que les exemples cités représentent davantage un raffinement et une exploration plus poussés d'une idée qui les a transportés à travers leur entière carrière.

Nous y avons inclus un style omis de la plupart des guides pendant la période héroïque de l'architecture moderne: l'édifice régional. Quelques régions comme la Californie et le Sud en particulier, ont toujours bien accueilli les styles régionaux leur donnant une place au rang de l'architecture "officielle." Pour le puriste des années 1930, le bois était le synonyme de régional, ce qui excluait automatiquement les architectes travaillant dans le style "Bay Area" au nord de la Californie jusqu'à ce que William Wilson Wurster franchisse les barrières et que, au sud de la Californie, les disciples de Greene et Greene se fassent envoyés au diable jusqu'à ce que Harwell Harris ainsi que quelques autres travaillant avec le bois se fassent acceptés.

Mais nous avons laissé passer beaucoup d'architecture "Pop"; celle-ci, ainsi que les maisons "craftsmen" ont été observées avec soin par David Gebhard et Robert Winter dans leur guide "l'architecture à Los Angeles et dans le sud de la Californie" et dans celui de Winter "le Bungalow de Californie." John Margolies continue à collectionner le "Pop" sous toutes ses formes à travers les Etats Unis et Charles Jencks apporte une érudition réfrénée au "Pop" du post-moderne. La collection de 20.000 cartes postales, anciennes et récentes, de villes, villages et hameaux à travers le pays que possède John Pastier, est le pivot de l'histoire populaire du développement urbain américain. John Chase et John Beach ont exploré quelques à-côtés architecturaux tels que des maisons de décorateurs et l'architecture de plateau du cinéma. Nous leur laissons toutes ces spécialités.

Nous avons éliminé du guide une liste d'édifices importants qui sont difficiles d'accès et qu'on ne peut pas visiter même si l'on essaie. Plusieurs maisons intéressantes sont exclues parce qu'elles sont cachées de la vue par des plantations ou des barrières et que les visiteurs n'y sont pas les bienvenus! Comme les guides se multiplient d'eux-mêmes à travers le pays, beaucoup de propriétaires de ces célèbres maisons s'en sont fatigués. Mais bien souvent l'étude de l'extérieur récompense suffisamment pour le déplacement.

Nous avons puisé dans de nombreuses sources, tels que nos propres voyages, l'expérience de nombreux conseillers et des publications pour la recherche des édifices à inclure dans le guide. Quelques architectes qui ont atteint une envergure internationale sont représentés par un grand nombre d'édifices à travers le pays. Nous avons pensé que si un architecte était amplement louangé pour son oeuvre que s'étend du Maine à l'Oregon, cela vaudrait la peine d'être vu.

L'architecture n'est pas distribuée démocratiquement, la meilleure étant lourdement concentrée dans les villes importantes et sur les côtes Est et Ouest. Mais le principe démocratique demeure inébranlable. Toutefois, nous fûmes peinés de noter que quelques uns des cinquante états étaient sous-représentés dans notre première ébauche ou n'avaient pas d'inscription du tout. Nous avons corrigé cela jusqu'à un certain point et espérons des correspondances outragés à ce sujet avant la seconde édition.

Nous n'avons pas seulement recherché une répartition géographique mais une répartition chronologique équilibrée. Il s'en suivit des controverses parmi les éditeurs et leurs amis quant à ce qui fut un feu de paille ou un premier pas sérieux. (Lou Kahn a dit une fois que si le premier édifice d'un architecte était bon, il était presque certain qu'il avait été emprunté, du fait qu'il est rare que des architectes trouvent leur voie dans leur premier édifice.) Une grande partie de l'oeuvre des jeunes architectes tend à être pleine d'esprit mais rien ne tombe plus haut que le bel esprit d'une décade antérieure. Pris hors du sujet, le bon mot édifice doit être expliqué à la prochaine génération. (Quelques édifices deviennent drôles avec l'âge sans le vouloir.) Ainsi, les édifices de Best Company peuvent se retrouver bien bas en 1995 si les plaisanteries doivent être expliquées. La situation est quelque peu différente en ce qui concerne les maisons de Frank Gehry avec leurs lattes à vue et leurs clôtures de chaînes: La pratique et les matériaux dénotent l'inflation de l'économie et le déclin de la connaissance d'un métier superbe ce qui peut ouvrir la voie à d'autres solutions du même problème universel.

Une autre préoccupation a été l'approche démocratique dans le type de construction. Il y avait assez de conseillers bienveillants autour de nous pour déplorer chaque type, du béton brut au peau de verre tendu jusqu'à l'armature de fer et les systèmes mécaniques à nu.

Ainsi, les principes en vigueur concernant le choix des édifices de ce guide furent: la répartition géographique, l'inclusion du travail des jeunes et aucun penchant de ce guide pour quelques types structuraux. Ce dernier critère peut-être déclaré négativement: Vous le passerez en route pour quelque chose d'autre, ou bien c'est dans le guide parce que c'est grand et c'est debout.

Si nous avons de la chance, ce guide sera ce que John Ashbery appelait "un sac dans lequel on décharge n'importe quoi et qui finit par y appartenir." Si notre susceptibilité a été trop hospitalière ou bien restrictive, les utilisateurs de ce guide seront rapides à nous blâmer.

前書

現代アメリカ建築の案内書作成にあたり、私共はまず二つの大きな疑問に直面致しました。一つは何故そんなものを作るのかという事。そして今一つは、どうやってそれを作り出すかという事でした。

最初の疑問に対する答は簡単でした。そんな案内書は現在存在しないからです。あるのは旅行ガイド、地域ガイド、各地の建築協会が作っている`御当地`ガイド、歴史的建築ガイド、そして国の建築概要といったもので、現代建築に特別関心を持つ旅行者が利用する目的で作られた案内書は皆無です。

この案内書は百科辞典風のものではありません。読者は好きな個所を選べますし、持ち運びにも便利、且つ記載された建物の正確な住所が殆ど全部写真入りで記されていますので、恐らくは、最も有益な案内書といえます。読者には前以って建物が興味深いものであるかどうかの判断を載けます。大都市の場合は、旅行者に能率的に訪問個所を分類して載く為、各々の場所が地図に示されています。

本書は、万一旅行者が或る都市、亦は或る地方の建築物を詳しく調査したい場合に案内書のリストにもなりますから、アメリカ中の重立った現代建築案内書を代表するものといえます。

これは、過去四十年間の建築の傾向を知りたい人々の為のポケット・ブックなのです。使い易く、読み易く、より詳しく知りたい方々に糸口になってくれます。

どの建物をこの案内書に載せるか決める事は非常な難題でした。幾つかの都市が事実上は現代建築の宝庫である一方、他の都市には秀れた建築の例が少ししかありません。前者の場合私共は厳選を余儀なくされますが、後者では選択する折に主感的な決断を下さざるを得ません。つまり、論争と妥協という事になります。1966年に高い評価を得た建物も、1981年には当り前のものになるかもしれませんか、ある特殊な構造システムを使う時や、配置に対して或る決定を下す時の基礎にはなってきたかもしれません。例えば多くの模倣建築を産み出したシーグラム・ビルディング(Seagram Building)は、都市空間に対する新しい考え方を作り出しました。他の建物でも部分々々を模倣され、それか余りに頻繁になった為、オリジナル・アイデアは傷付けられました。

新しい土地の使い方をしている他の二、三の建物としては、ニュー・ヨークのローチ・アンド・ディンケルー (Roche and Dinkeloo)によるフォード・ファウンデーション・ビルディング (Ford Foundation Building) にみられる狭い都市の条件下での大きなガラス屋根の内庭、亦、ロス・アンジェルスのスミス・ジョーンズ・アンド・コンティニ (Smith, Jones and Contini) によるミューチュアル・ハウジング (Mutual Housing) にみられるような、谷側は自然のまま残し、山側の土地に家屋を配置させた最初の大規模な効外住宅開発、そしてハリウッド・ヒルズのジョン・ロートナー (John Lautner) によるケモスフェア・ハウス (Chemosphere houses in the Hollywood Hills) にはコンクリートの一本柱が使われています。

1956年、ルイス・カーン (Louis I. Kahn) 設計によるニュー・ジャージー州トレントンのジューウィッシュ・コミュニティ・センター・バス・ハウス (Jewish Community Center Bath House, Trenton, NJ) や、1964年、ロバート・ヴェンチュリー (Robert Venturi) による彼の母親の為のフィラデルフィアの住宅 (Venturi & Rauch) , 亦、1971年、シーザー・ペリ (Cesar Pelli) によるロス・アンジェルスのパシフィック・デザイン・センター (Pacific Design Center, Los Angeles, Gruen Associates) 等も建築家の経歴の上で転換点となっている意味で上記のものに加えられます。

その他に、建築や都市計画上重要な方向転換を示したものとして、1954年、ヴィクター・グルーエン (Victor Gruen) のノースランド・ショッピング・センター (Northland Shopping Center, Detroit) , 1962年、イーロー・サーリネン (Eero Saarinen) の TWA ターミナル (TWA Terminal at Kennedy Airport) , 1966年、ジョン・ポートマン (John Portman) のピーチトリー・センター (Peachtree Center, Atlanta), 1968年、ローチ・アンド・ディンケルーのオークランド博物館 (Oakland Museum) , そして同年、ムーア、リンドン、ターンブル・アンド・ウイッテイカー (Moore, Lyndon, Turnbull and Whitaker) のシー・ランチ (Sea Ranch, Gualala, California) があげられます。

また、フランク・ロイド・ライト (Frank Lloyd Wright) によるニュー・ヨーク、五番街のグーゲンハイム博物館 (Guggenheim Museum) に於る反都市的な螺旋形のように、新しい方法と新しい場所に古い形を使ったものもあります。或いは、シカゴのマリナ・シティにあるバートランド・ゴールドバーグ (Bertrand Goldberg) の円筒形アパートもありますし、遂に完成をみなかったミース (Mies) の1920年の無形ガウス・タワー・プロジェクトに基いたジョン・ハインリック・アンド・ジョージ・シッポライト (John Heinrich and George Schipporeit) のレイクポイント・タワー (Lakepoint Tower, Chicago) もあります。

その他、バックミンスター・フラー (Buckminster Fuller) のように建築家達が生涯をかけて考えたアイデアを更に練り、探求した例もあります。

私共は、近代建築の英雄時代に殆どの案内書に書きもたらされてきた地域の建築をもここに載せています。或る地方、特にカリフォルニア州や、南部諸州では、近代建築を地域性のある建築として認めていました。1930年代の純粋主義者にとって、木造は、ウィリアム・ウィルソン・ワースター (William Wilson Wurster) がその壁を破る迄、北部カリフォルニア州の海岸地方スタイルとして建築家達から敬遠されていましたが、南カリフォルニア州では、ハーウェル・ハリス (Harwell Harris) と他の何人かが、木造建築で認められる迄、グリーン兄弟 (Greene and Greene) 派には暫くの反省の時期がありました。

しかしながら私達は多くのポップ建築 (通俗建築) も見て参りました。この事は、手工芸家達の住宅と併せてデイヴィッド・ゲブハード (David Gebhard) とロバート・ウィンター (Robert Winter) の案内書 "Architecture in Los Angeles and Southern California" や、ウィンターの "The California Bungalow" の中によく書かれています。ジョン・マーゴリス (John Margolies) はアメリカ中の全てのポップ建築についてよく書いていますし、チャールス・ジェンクス (Charles Jencks) は近代以降、ポップ建築に疑問を持ちながら奨学金を出しています。国中の都市から町、小村落に至る迄新旧の絵葉書を集めて二万枚からなるジョン・パステリア (John Pastier) のコレクションは、アメリカ都市開発の大衆史の中で主軸になっています。ジョン・チエイス (John Chase) とジョン・ビーチ

(John Beach) はこのような建築上の脇道であるインテリア・デコレーターの設計した住宅や舞台装置的建築を研究しています。私共は、そういうものは彼等にまかせておく事に致します。

私共は、捜しにくく、しかも入場出来ない可能性のある多くの重要な建物はこの案内書から削除致しました。多くの秀れた住宅も木々や柵で見えないように隠されている上、訪問者は歓迎されませんので、この本からは除外されています。国中に案内書がふえるにつれ、多くの有名な家の持ち主の忍耐力も尽きてきています。とはいえ、外観を見るだけでも訪問の価値の充分あるものもあります。

この案内書には、私共自身の旅行やら、多くのアドバイザーの体験やら、出版物から捜し出された建物が載せられています。国際的レベルに達する何人かの建築家達は、夥しい数の建築をアメリカ中に建てていますし、或る建築家等は、東海岸から西海岸迄その仕事の範囲を広げている程有名ですし、恐らくは一見に価すると私共は思います。

建築は、民主的には分布されていません。大都市の周辺と、東海岸側、西海岸側に秀れた建築が見られます。しかしながら民主主義も根強い上に、第一版では五十州の内何州かは少ししか載せていませんし、亦全く載せていない州もあるので、或る程度迄私共はその点を修正してきましたが、第二版が出る迄には皆様の御意向に沿えるように修正し直すつもりです。

私共が求めていますのは、単に地理的な分布でなく、バランスのとれた時代の分布でもあるのです。編集者とその友達々の間で、何が線香花火的に終るか、はたまた本当の第一歩になるかの論議が醸し出されました。(ルイス・カーンは且て、建築家の最初の建物は殆どが誰かの真似をしているので、最初の作品には概ね良いものはない、と言っています。)若い建築家の作品の多くは機知に富んでいますが、十年たてばそれも色褪せます。時代が変わってゆくと、うまい建築と言われていたものでも、次の世代にはしばしば説明が必要になってきます。(建物によっては、時代を経た為に面白くなったものもあります。)従って、今話題になっているベスト・カンパニー (Best Company) の建物も、1995年にはうけなくなるかも知れません。状況

は、フランク・ゲーリー (Frank Gehry) の露出させた木舞と金網状の柵を使った住宅設計に至って少々変わってきました。技術と材料はインフレ経済と職人氣質の低下を物語り、その事はまた、普遍的なその他の問題の解決策へと繋がっていきます。

もう一つの考えは、建物のタイプに対する民主的なアプローチです。うちっ放しのコンクリートから、鉄骨やメカニックを露出させたガラス張りの建築に至る迄、余り賛成できないアドバイザーもおります。

従って、この案内書に載せる建築を選んだ主旨は、若い人の作品を含めて地理的に分布させ、構造的に秀れたものにだけ重きをおいた案内書にはしてありません。亦、最後に申しあげるこの基準は些か消極的かと思いますが、何処かへ秀れた建築を見に行かれる途中にある建築とか、非常に大きいとか、目立つとかいう理由で載せたものもあります。

この案内書が、ジョン・アッシュベリー (John Ashbery) の言った、`何でもかんでも投げこまれ、それ故に保存される袋'のように思って戴ければ幸いです。私共の感覚が余りに寛大すぎたり、或いは厳しすぎれば、読者の皆様からすぐにお叱りを載く事と存じます。

Esther McCoy is the author of Five California Architects, Neutra, Modern California Houses (reissued in 1978 as Case Study Houses 1945-1962), Craig Ellwood and Vienna to Los Angeles: Two Journeys—pioneering studies that continue to bring international attention to California architects and architecture. Since 1960 Mrs. McCoy has been a correspondent for Progressive Architecture and before that to Arts & Architecture, Zodiac and Lotus. Her writing has also appeared in Global Architecture, Domus, Journal of the Society of Architectural Historians, Perspecta, etc. She is an honorary member of the American Institute of Architects and has a Distinguished Service citation from the California Council AIA. Her latest book, Second Generation, is a study of California's architectural pioneers of the '30s and '40s to be published in 1982 by Peregrine Smith Books.

Barbara Goldstein is the Editor of Arts and Architecture magazine, LA Architect, and is, along with Esther McCoy, a Los Angeles correspondent to Progressive Architecture magazine. Educated in architecture and fine arts at Rhode Island School of Design, Ms. Goldstein lived in London for seven years, teaching at the Architectural Association, and working as an editor for Architectural Design magazine and the RIBA Journal. Her articles have appeared in Progressive Architecture, Architectural Design, the RIBA Journal, Domus, Architectural Review, and several other publications.
